

Barclay House London

Recommends...

Guests have often asked “Where does this delicious tea come from?” and posed other similar product-related inquiries during their stay. So, to make your London shopping trip that bit more simple, we’ve gathered together a quick list of the why’s, where’s and how’s.

Enjoy.

Molton Brown Eucalyptus Bath Gel

Take that relaxing aroma back home with you. Available at the Molton Brown concessions in Harrods and Harvey Nichols; also at 190 Kings Road and the original shop at 58 South Molton Street (between Oxford Street and Brook Street – stop in before visiting the Handel Museum, or Claridges for cocktails and jazz from 6:30pm.)

www.moltonbrown.com

Tiptree raspberry jam

With 60% fruit, and made only from fresh, not frozen raspberries, this has to be the best. Available around the corner at Waitrose or Partridges, 2-5 Duke of Yorks Square (Sloane Square) and Harrods grocery dept. on the lower ground floor.

www.tiptree.com

Penhaligon's Blenheim fragrance and bath gel

Supplier to the Prince of Wales, so why not you? Available at the Penhaligons shop on the lower ground floor of Harrods, or 20A Brook Street or 41 Wellington Street (Covent Garden).

www.penhaligons.com

Linens and Towelling

Our 100% finest cotton sheets and towelling come from The White Company (Sloane Square, behind Peter Jones) and Yves Delorme finest French linens at Harrods, Harvey Nichols and their own shop at Duke of York Square (Sloane Square).

www.yvesdelorme.com
www.thewhitecompany.co.uk

Cotton Waffle Bathrobes

Simple, elegant and comfortable. Purchased at the Four Seasons Hotel, Chicago. Call to order from their gift shop.

☎ +1 (312) 280-8800

www.fourseasons.com/chicagofs/

Teas

We serve tea from London's oldest tea merchant, Thomas Twining. Visit their original shop at 216 The Strand and have them serve you a perfect cup of tea, or purchase Twinings teas at Waitrose and most shops.

www.twining.com

Teas and more at Fortnum & Mason

Guests also enjoy herbal infusions from Fortnum & Mason, suppliers to the Queen for just about everything edible. Their Christmas tea is especially popular. Don't miss their fabulous window displays before entering the over 200-year old building on Piccadilly, just across from the Royal Academy of Arts. Their famous clock chimes on the hour and entertains you with a jousting session of the old order.

www.fortnumandmason.com
www.fortnumandmason-usa.com

Daily sundries

Umbrellas, washing kits, travel-hairdryers and many other little necessities are available at ultra-minimalist Japanese chain, Muji. Several locations, including 118 King's Road, 187 Oxford Street and 185 Long Acre (Covent Garden).

www.muji.co.uk

A java jolt

Our strong coffee is imported from Vienna and sometimes through friends in Germany or Switzerland. Harrods has some feisty beans, for a price, but try Germany's latest import to Wimbledon (across from the station), Tchibo. Or order online; their other products are also great deals.

www.tchibo.co.uk